

CHAPTER 6

The gang of thieves went back to Fagin's house. They didn't know where Sikes and Oliver had gone.

They said, 'It went wrong. They shot Oliver.'

Fagin was worried. He went to look for them. He ran through the streets. He went to a pub called the Three Cripples.

'What can I do for you, Mr. Fagin?' asked the man behind the bar.

'Is HE here?'

'No,' replied the man.

'Will HE be here tonight?' asked Fagin.

'Monk? Yes.'

'Tell him I came here to see him.'

Fagin left the pub. He went to Bill Sikes' house. Nancy was asleep.

'Where's Bill, my dear?'

'I don't know,' said Nancy. She went back to sleep and Fagin went home.

Fagin got home at 11 o'clock at night. Monk was waiting for him.

‘Fagin!’ whispered Monk. ‘Where the devil have you been?’

‘On your business, my dear,’ said Fagin, ‘On your business, all night.’

‘Oh, of course!’ said Monk, with a sneer. ‘Well what’s come of it?’

‘Nothing good,’ said Fagin.

‘Nothing bad, I hope?’

Fagin led Monk inside. He didn’t want anyone to see Monk.

‘I said the plan wasn’t good. Why didn’t you keep Oliver here?’ Monk said.

‘If the worst comes to the worst and he’s dead ... ’ Fagin said, but Monk stopped him. He saw the shadow of a woman. Fagin chased the shadow but he didn’t find anyone. Monk left at 1 o’clock and Fagin went to sleep.

Sikes said, ‘Wolves tear your throats!’ He watched the other thieves run away. Sikes was carrying Oliver. Dogs barked and men shouted. They chased Sikes. It was too dark to see them. Sikes put Oliver in a dry ditch then ran away.

if the worst comes to the worst (idiom) if the situation becomes unpleasant and difficult

Oliver woke up in the morning. He felt very ill. He was confused. He saw the house that he had tried to rob. He felt scared, but he needed help.

The men that chased Bill Sikes sat in the kitchen. They were drinking tea. They opened the door. They knew Oliver as a thief. They dragged him inside.

‘Don’t hurt him! Bring him upstairs. Treat him well,’ the lady of the house said.

The house had two ladies, Mrs. Maylie and her niece, Miss Rose. Mrs. Maylie was old. Miss Rose was young and beautiful.

Mr Giles was a servant who looked after the ladies. He was the man who shot Oliver. Mr Brittles was the gardener. The doctor, who was a surgeon, came to see Oliver. He was with Oliver for a long time. He came down to talk to Mrs. Maylie.

‘Have you seen the boy?’ he asked.

‘No,’ she said.

‘Will you come with me to see the boy?’ the doctor asked.

‘Yes,’ said Mrs. Maylie.

surgeon (n) a doctor who performs medical operations

*'Don't hurt him! Bring him upstairs.
Treat him well,' the lady of the house said.*

CHAPTER 7

The doctor took Miss Rose and Mrs. Maylie to see Oliver. Oliver was asleep. His hair was on his face. He didn't look like a nasty boy. Miss Rose sat next to him. She brushed his hair from his face. Oliver smiled in his sleep.

'That boy is no thief,' said Mrs. Maylie.

'Dear aunt, he cannot go to prison!' said Miss Rose.

'My dear love, he won't. Doctor, how can we save him?' asked Mrs. Maylie.

'I will bully Mr. Giles and Mr. Brittle. That will do it,' said the doctor.

'Then do it,' said Mrs. Maylie.

A constable was waiting downstairs.

'He can't be moved,' the doctor said to the constable.

Oliver woke up when it was getting dark. The doctor, constable, Miss Rose and Mrs. Maylie went to see him.

They asked Oliver a lot of questions. Oliver answered them. He told them all about his past.

The doctor said, 'I'll talk to the servants in the kitchen.'

The servants sat at the table in the kitchen. The policeman was there too.

‘How’s the boy?’ asked Mr. Giles.

‘He’s better. Are you sure that the boy is the thief?’ the doctor asked. He had a scary voice. ‘Will you swear to God?’

There was a knock at the door. Mr. Brittles opened it.

‘Who is it?’ he asked.

‘Police from Bow Street. You asked us to come.’

Mrs. Maylie came down to see the police. Miss Rose sat with Oliver.

‘This is where the robbers came in,’ the doctor told the police.

Oliver was asleep. His hair was on his face.
